Bing Crosby dies on golf course

Madrid, Spain (UPI) - Bing Crosby butler, Alan Fisher, who was in England. had shown no signs of fatigue. He was hapdied of a heart attack Friday on a sunswept Spanish golf course minutes after he and his Spanish partner had won a foursome. He was 73.

Crosby was "happy and singing" during the 4½-hour round of golf that was to be his last, one of his golfing partners said.

Crosby collapsed as the four walked back to the clubhouse and was rushed to the Madrid Red Cross Hospital. He was dead on arrival, a hospital spokesman Crosby arrived in Madrid from London where he had been singing to standing room only audiences including those at London's famous Palladium, Britain's biggest variety theatre. He had been scheduled to take part in a partridge hunt Saturday, then fly on to Majorca.

On Wednesday night, his wife Kathy flew home to America.

Mrs. Crosby was recording at a studio in San Francisco when she received the news in a telephone call from U.S. Ambassador

Shortly before his last round of golf, Crosby was interviewed by a reporter of the newspaper As. He told the interviewer jured his head slightly when he fell. Bing his favorite film was "High Society" which he made in 1956 with Grace Kelly, Palmer, who said in Paris Bing had now Princess Grace of Monaco, and was looking forward to teaming again with Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour in what would have been the eighth and final "Road" pictures — "The Road to the Fountain of Youth."

Hope, visiting in Summit, N.J., was described by his secretary in Hollywood as 'terribly shocked' over the death of the man to whom he had given the nickname

'Der Bingle.''
Hope, who had been staying at the Ritz in Madrid, dined Thursday night with Zulueta, president of the Moraleja club which was co-designed and built by Jack Nicklaus, one of the golfing greats Crosby counted as his friends.

EPA warns of vegetable pesticide

Washington (AP) - The Environmental Protection Agency said Friday persons who eat vegetables treated with a common pesticide run a risk of developing cancer.

The pesticide dibromochlorapropane, commonly known as DBCP, also could cause sterility or reduce sperm counts in men, EPA findings disclose.

DBCP residues on foods eaten in average amounts over a two-year period could cause up to 21 cancer cases per million persons, EPA said.

His study resolution was submitted Friday to a public hearing by the Unicameral's Judiciary Committee, and produced a plea for change from District Judge Ronald Reagan of

"As far as I'm concerned," he told the senators, "everyone of (the exempted classes of citizens) has the obligation and duty of everyone else to at least be available for jury

Reagan urged the Legislature to "take a look" at the possibility of lowering the minimum age of 21 to 19, and he requested lawmakers to enact a juror protection statute to prohibit employers from taking any adverse action against employes who serve on a jury.

Now, he said, he is sometimes told that employers let their employes know that if they are going to be absent from work for jury duty, they need not bother coming back to work when that service is completed.

Convicted felons are simply disqualified from jury service for life.

Reagan said the blanket exemptions should be replaced by the judge's authority to exempt rsons for hardship reasons or allow them to postpone their jury service to a later date.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln said he believes Nebraska law allows "a lot of people to get off the hook" by removing their obligation to serve on a jury.

Barnett questioned the wisdom of limiting eligibility to registered voters, barring convicted felons after they have completed their sentence and exempting the large number of classes of citizens from service.

State law also provides a maximum age limit of 70 for jurors, but Reagan said he has "no thoughts" about whether that ceiling should be changed.

Douglas County Election Commissioner Mike Boyle of Omaha told the senators that some people do not register to vote so they can avoid jury duty.

Pups get all her concern

From the bunch of hound dogs she remembers as a child on her grandmother's farm to her own three pets and the kennel full of dogs where she works, Jacqui West's canine friends have been many.

What started as an instinctive love for animals has turned into a full-time hobby and a full-time job for the 19-Jacqui laughs as she remembers how she came to own her first dog - the gift of a neighbor - some 10 years ago, "I told him my mom said it was okay when she really didn't. But she couldn't resist the puppy after I brought him

The runt of the litter, weaned before it should have been, the terrior-mix pup challenged Jacqui's dograising instincts from the start.

Soon her neighbor had built a broad jump with old broom sticks so the dog could learn to jump like the show dogs Jacqui had seen on TV. She tried her hand at training and liked it

Several dogs later — the pup died of an epileptic fit and another had to be put to sleep - Jacqui talked mother into a Peke-a-poo pup. It was her sophomore year in high school and she joined a 4-H dog

The next few years saw Jacqui more and more involved in dog clubs, from the 4-H groups, where she was a junior leader, to the Greater Lincoln Obedience Club. Selling souvenirs at Saturday football games helped support her increasingly expensive

Carter supports water projects

Washington (UPI) - A White House official said Friday President Carter will support the rapid completion of several federal water projects he once sought to eliminate.

A White House spokesman said because inflation might boost construction costs, "The President said that after his review he would support the rapid completion of those projects for which he had no suggested modifications.'

One of Carter's first moves in office was an attempt to cut off funds for almost 30 water projects nationwide which he considered unnecessary. But Congress then approved eight projects on Carter's socalled "hit list.

Carter made the comments during a meeting with Western state congressmen during which he said the nation faces a severe water shortage, according to Rep. Dan Marriott, R-Utah.

The official said Carter told the meeting he "had not made up his mind on any" of the disputed projects with respect to the 1979 budget.

But the President learned more about the Central Utah Project, parts of which were questioned, "and that he would probably support its continuation as modified," the official said.

Marriott said Carter "said that he did not intend to continue fighting over these projects and in fact would consider accelerating them to completion rather than waiting for 15 to 20 years down the

The Congress members reported Carter also told them resolution of water policy would have to include broadening of the 160-acre limit on farms irrigated with water from federal projects. The limit was established under a 1902 law which the Interior Department was ordered recently by a federal court to enforce.

The proposed regulations would require the breakup of large corporate-owned farms in the West, primarily in California. Carter has told a group of farm editors he believes the law has to be changed because expensive modern farming machinery makes the 160-acre farm uneconomical.

John Cavanaugh, Charles Thone and Virginia Smith opposed a Senate measure that would pay for abortions in cases where a woman's life was in danger, rape or incest or where a woman or fetus stood to suffer serious health damage because of pregnancy. ## Carter, Torrijos agree on defense

Washington (AP) - President Carter and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos, trying to dispel questions about the new Panama Canal treaty, agreed Friday the United States can defend the waterway against any threat and send its warships through it ahead of others in any crisis.

But they also agreed in a joint statement that the treaty allows the United States to direct its actions only toward insuring that the canal remain open and "never against the territorial integrity or political independence of Panama."

Carter said he thought the statement resolved "the major differences of interpretation" that threaten Senate ratification of the treaty. His negotiator, Ambassador Sol Linowitz, told reporters he showed the statement to Senate leaders and "the reaction was very favorable, I'm pleased to say." As Torrijos left the White House, he told reporters through an interpreter: "If a great power attacks the canal or puts in danger the canal it is the right of the United States . . . (to) go and defend the canal."

However, he added: "The U.S. participates in defending the canal, but the United States has no right to intervene or interfere in the internal affairs of Panama.'

"No moral leader of the world would sign a receipt allowing a foreign country to intervene in its country," Torrijos said. "If he would sign (such) a treaty, don't trust him because there must be something wrong with him.

"Intervention is as bad a word here as it is in my country," Torrijos declared.

The President told a group of visiting newspaper editors and broadcast news directors from around the country:

'I think his (Torrijo's) and my statement . . . will successfully resolve the major differences of interpretation that have been raised about our right to defend the canal and also about the right of our ships to have expeditious passage through the

Swede, Briton win Nobel for economics

Stockholm - Two pioneers in international trade theory, one Swedish and the other British, won the 1977 Nobel Prize for economics, it was announced here Friday. They are Bertil Ohlin, 78, once an academic "boy wonder" and later a leading antisocialist Swedish political figure, and James Meade, 70, a former professor at Cambridge University. They were cited for their "pathbreaking contributions" to the theory of international trade and international capital movements, a field that had not been recognized in the eight previous economics prizes.

The Royal Swesish Academy observed that both men attracted wide attention when their main works appeared in the 1930s and 1950s and that others have used their theories for extensive empirical research.

"The breadth and importance of Ohlin's and Meade's contributions, had however, not become obvious until the '60s and '70s in conjunction with the growing internationalization of the economic system," it said.

Both Ohlin and Meade are recognized giants in the field, with Ohlin's 1933 book "Interregional and International Trade" bringing him recognition as the founder or modern theory on the dynamics of trade.

Meade developed Ohlin's work but his main contributionlies in relating trade to over-all economic policy. His most famous work is "The Theory of International Economic Policy," two volumes published in 1951 and 1955.

Hanna indicted on 40 counts

Former Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif., was indicted Friday on 40 criminal counts by a federal grand jury in connection with the Korean scandal on Capitol Hill.

Hanna, 63, was charged with con-spiracy, bribery, mail fraud and failing to register as an agent for a foreign government.

The indictment said that while serving in the House, Hanna conspired and collaborated with millionaire Korean rice merchant Tongsun Park, who was indicted in August for lavishing money and expensive favors on members of Congress.

John Ehrlichman Friday was granted a reduction in his sentence for the Watergate plumbers break-in and could leave federal prison in two weeks.

Ehrlichman had been serving three concurrent terms of 20 months to five years for perjury and violating the civil rights of Daniel Ellsberg's phychiatrist. U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell Friday trimmed that to 42 months - making him eligible for parole Oct. 28 after one year in jail.

Extension proposed of normal work life

By Joanne Farris

How do readers of this column feel about Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps' suggestion that the nation expand the normal work life of Americans to age 68?

Ms. Kreps has suggested this as one way to help the Social Security system out of its fiscal difficulties and at the same time meet the demands of the forces which oppose mandatory retirement at 65. If people worked until age 68, they would have more earning time, so their retirement income would be higher. If the plan included the opportunity for workers to take optional time off during their middle years, retirement use of leisure might be more fulfilling. By having a short trial retirement in mid-life, persons might plan ahead better to make their actual retirement years richer in in-One other reason why Ms.

Kreps, who has long been a serious student of work life and retirement, suggests continuing the normal work life to age 68 is that the current life cycle of leisure to age 21, work from 21-65, and retired leisure from 65 onward, seems to her capricious and unrealistic. What happens too often is that persons are poor in their youth and poor in their old age.

Since this proposal has been put forward as a possibility for the future, readers who have strong feelings on the matter should speak out. Send your comments to Ms. Kreps at the

DEAR JOANNE FARRIS: When I lived in Kingwood, W. Va., I was a member of the Senior Citizens Club and the director of its Kitchen Band. This group is very active in civic betterment projects and is constantly helping the less fortunate. It is one of the star attractions at the yearly local Buckwheat Festival.

ANSWER: I attended a senior festival last weekend. Senior musicians included a country and western group, playing guitars and fiddles, along with an harmonica band. The performers had a great time, and I was watching the spectators; they loved every minute of it.

This Heritage Arts Festival had senior-manned display booths of arts and crafts, running the gamut from beekeeping through weaving, including porcelain doll-making, ceramics water-color and oil painting, quilting, jewelrymaking, and wood carving, to a 69-year-old woodworker whose hobby of five years ago has grown to a daily 6-5 job to keep up with the demand for his choice cradles and hobby-horses.

Likewise, having agreed with the Soviet Union on a process for going to a Geneva Middle East conference, he has committed the authority of his govern-ment and risked his prestige.

He is also playing high-risk politics with his Panama Canal treaties. And if he is rejected by the Congress on Panama, arms control, and on a Geneva Middle East conference, then he will clearly have the first major crisis of his administration.

Accordingly, he has finally decided to face up to all this and appeal to the American people over the head of the Congress. If the information here is correct, he has done so with the greatest reluctance, but the authority and respect of his administration is now at stake.

In his press conference, he has said, in effect, that the security of the nation is at stake in his energy program. Abroad, he has bet on a compromise with the Soviet Union on arms control and a Middle East peace conference, both of which are being challenged, not only by the Republican opposition but by his own party.

Finally, Carter has apparently recognized, after the diversions of Bert Lance and many other secondary issues, that if he cannot get consent of his own party on energy, arms control, Panama and the Middle East, there will be no way that he can negotiate effectively with Moscow, Peking, or any of the other major capitals of the

So he has changed his approach in the last couple of weeks. He has decided to challenge the Congress, even the leaders of his own party, and to go to the American people for a decision.

It is the first major crisis of his administration. And even within his own cabinet, there is doubt that he is making the right gamble, but after months of doubt, he has clearly decided to take the risk rather than to compromise as he has been doing with everybody in the last few months. # Jobs down the drain

Family anxiety and anguish will soon abound for hundreds of people in the Sioux City, Iowa area. Some 1,000 employees of the Zenith Radio Corp. plant there will soon be out of jobs, the stereo system components now manufactured there to be purchased from abroad.

Quite understandably, this has produced a great deal of bitterness among the employees, since Zenith has announced the closing of several plants as a result of import competition it says it cannot meet. Zenith plans to build two plants outside the United States.

The understandable feeling is that the U.S. government should not allow imports to enter this country to the point of American workers losing jobs. No doubt a great many people beyond the Zenith employees share that feeling.

Unfortunately, the situation is a little more complicated than that. We are not unconcerned about the lost jobs in Sioux City. The situation will be damaging, also, to the economy of that region of Nebraska. Then too, one would need to be heartless, at least, to have no sympathy for people who lose their jobs.

But the Zenith situation is just a part of a complex international economic situation. World trade is a two way street of imports and exports. If it were not for oil imports, this nation's trade balance would be about as favorable as anyone could expect.

Lincoln, Neb.

A nation as wealthy on the whole as the United States cannot have an export trade that far exceeds its imports. We cannot get more from the rest of the world than we give.

That is the overall dilemma in which the Zenith employees are caught up. It is not just a question of TV and stereo imports, but a matter of all exports and imports and that involves business and industry throughout this nation and the

Then, there is this country's own economy, hard hit to compete in world markets as a result of continuing inflation. Not even an economy as strong as ours can continue the endless rise in prices and wages that has been inflicted upon it in the past 25 years.

Much of our growth has not been real and many of our citizens have suffered real economic loss on any comparative basis. Both management and labor must take their share of the blame for that, as neither have demonstrated any restraint in their areas of responsibility.

None of this softens the blow any for laid off workers but we are kidding ourselves if we think the answer for them is as simplistic as stopping imports the minute jobs here are threatened. The answer will demand some sacrifice on the part of all of us and the best thinking and efforts of both government and private enterprise.

On Saturday, October 8, the Clinton neighborhood had our fall clean-up and we think it was a big success. We would like to thank those who made it possible: The city of Lincoln's co-

the aid of Urban Development financing made a big improvement in the city-owned Northeast Diagonal land by removing dead trees, old stumps, underbrush, mowing, etc. I believe that work is still in progress.

The latest examination of coziness between the CIA and the press was, as usual, not in the "serious" hard news press. It appeared in Rolling Stone, a magazine devoted mostly to rock

The author was Carl Bernstein of Watergate fame, no longer a Washington Post reporter but a freelancer. It was a long article - about 12,000 words - and it contained an attention-getting estimate of the number of journalists who have played ball and more with the CIA - 400. Many of the specifics had been reported before, but the article conveyed, as no previous one had, the depth of CIA-press involvement, and its sanction in the executive suites. Probably the most serious injury was done the New York Times. Bernstein identifies the Times as one of the CIA's most valuable news business connections. He quotes an unnamed CIA source as saying that between 1950 and 1966 the Times provided cover for about 10 CIA people as part of a toplevel agreement to cooperate with the agency. Among the journalists he singles out as having close CIA ties was C. L. Sulzberger, foreign affairs columnist of the Times.

When Bernstein and Rolling Stone distributed copies of the article á few weeks before its publication, the Times carried a column-long news story and, a day later, a longer story consisting largely of denials, including strong ones from the Times and Sulzberger. With the second article, the Times Charles B. Seib published a letter to the CIA pleading for information on any past or current relationships with the newspaper or its

Noting the allegations in the Bernstein article, the Times told the CIA that its refusal to disclose its dealings with the media "has placed the Times and its employees in an untenable position." It stated a much broader problem than its own when it said:

"The American public is confused and some foreign governments are using this situation as a weapon against the press. . . The work of correspondents has been hindered and. because we have been denied access to our only source of authoritative information, we are unable to present all the facts to the public.'

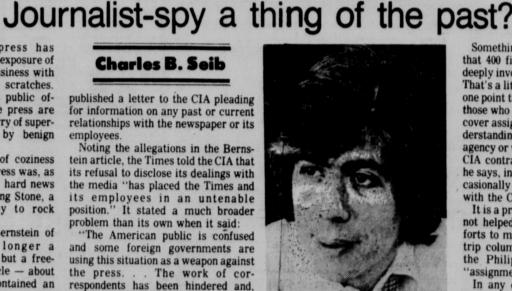

The CIA was unmoved. It said that it would not provide the information and, furthermore, that by its refusal it was not admitting such information existed.

The Times' frustration is understandable, and yet one must wonder what would happen if it unleashed a team of its own top reporters on the story. Bernstein seems to have been able to find talkative CIA sources, despite the official stonewalling.

Publication of the Bernstein article was marked by an entertaining bit of infighting between the author and his old employer, the Washington Post.

After the text of the article was made available to the press, but several weeks before publication, the Post carried a long takeout on CIA and the press in general and the Bernstein article in particular.

This article, by Richard Harwood. deputy managing editor of the Post, and Walter Pincus, a Post reporter, was mostly rehash. But it contained an allegation of a serious flaw in the Bernstein piece, tucked discreetly between parentheses. A Senate source was quoted as saying that at least half of 400 CIA summaries of operations involving journalists received by Senate investigators concerned foreign, not American, journalists.

A telling blow if true, but Bernstein got in the last lick. When his article appeared in Rolling Stone it contained a paragraph that hadn't been in the earlier version. It said that a "relatively small number of the summaries described the activities of foreign journalists." And in a dig at the Post for relying on a Senate source rather than on CIA sources, Bernstein added: 'Those officials most knowledgeable bout the subject say that a figure of 400 American journalists is on the low side of the actual number who maintained covert relationships and underteek clandestine tasks."

Something more should be said about that 400 figure. First of all, just how deeply involved were these journalists? That's a little murky. Bernstein says at one point that the figure "refers only to those who were 'tasked' in their undercover assignments, or had a mutual understanding that they would help the agency or were subject to some form of CIA contractual control " It does not. he says, include the journalists who occasionally traded favors or information with the CIA.

It is a pretty broad definition and it is not helped by Berstein's tortured efforts to make his lead-off case, a 1953 trip columnist Joseph Alsop made to the Philippines, qualify as a CIA 'assignment.

In any case, the estimate that 400 journalists worked for or with the CIA over 25 years is less startling when one remembers that early last year, after much pruning by the agency, a Senate report found that it still had covert relationships with 50 American journalists and other employees of American media organizations

Bernstein's article was interesting and useful. He clearly did a lot of dogged legwork. But its value is mostly as history

The give-and-take that goes on between journalists and sources undoubtedly will continue with CIA sources, who often can be extremely valuable. But the systematic use of the American press for intelligence purposes seems to be a thing of the past. One problem area does remain, however. That is the CIA's use of the foreign press. The agency has refused to renounce this activity, even though it smacks of hypocrisy and is bound to be an international irritant. Congre could ban it in the CIA charter now being drafted, but it is too early to predict that it will. (c) 1977, The Washington Post Comp

Mysteries of farming learned and enjoyed

Last summer, when their neighbors said, "It's time to start hitting the thistles," Barbra and Larry O'Meara nodded approvingly

But when they were alone Mrs. O'Meara asked her husband, "What's a thistle?"

"Darned if I know," he replied.

They soon found out, however, and spent a good part of the summer combing their farm to eradicate the pesky weeds.

The O'Mearas had always wanted to live on a farm, but they owned nine homes in eight cities before finally settling down last year on the farm near Malcolm.

Mrs. O'Meara was raised on a farm in Mississippi, but her husband grew up in Lincoln, and this is his first experience pitching hay and driving a tractor For the present, O'Meara will be an evening-and-weekend farmer. He is an executive with State Securities Savings and Loan Co. in Lincoln. The O'Mearas are moving into a whole new

"I'd rather come home and work around the farm than sit around watching TV,"

"We want to become as self-sufficient as possible," Mrs. O'Meara says.

They plan to build a one-room version of a pioneer cabin in their basement, complete with wood-burning stove, beds, tables and chairs and a storage place for food.

Then in the event of an energy failure, they will be able to close off the rest of the house and live in the basement.

Mrs. O'Meara wants to eventually feed her family almost entirely from the produce of the farm. They will raise a few pigs and smoke their own pork, get milk from their own cow, make their own cheese.

Right now, they're bottle-feeding two calves and have their own flock of ducks.

The girls - Melina, 11, and Micaela and Michelle, 7 — have ponies to ride and are getting involved in 4-H.

Safe from the distractions, pollution, noise and hubbub of the city, the O'Mearas are seeking a more peaceful, slower life

One of the most thrilling experiences for Mrs. O'Meara was listening to the coyotes howling at night. "It's just like music," she Holloway was Lancaster County sheriff from 1942 to 1950.

As the O'Mearas sought to learn more about the old depot, they became interested in Holloway, who was himself a practitioner of the simple life.

Holloway lived on the farm from the time he retired as sheriff until he died April 28, 1976. The farmhouse was of solid redwood, but Holloway built it cheaply. Prisoners on workrelease from the county jail helped with its Present Sheriff Merle Karnopp says he remembers how Holloway used to come to work each morning and pick up jail inmates who would spend the day at his farm, working on the house and doing odd jobs Besides the two railroad buildings, Holloway acquired some old wooden boxcars which the prisoners tore apart to make fences.

The fences stand today, some with the door handles still on them. 'He was a collector," Mrs. O'Meara said. He was thrifty, and he never threw anything

'We hauled away 28 truckloads of junk," O'Meara said. Holloway apparently frequented auctions. The basement of the house was crammed full of old television sets, stereos and odds and ends of furniture The O'Mearas found several pairs of rusted handcuffs, and some odd-looking metal rings in ceiling beams and walls. Mrs. O'Meara is convinced they were "shackles" for unruly prisoners.

The O'Mearas have left one in the basement ceiling as a conversation piece. It resembles the ring from a horse neck-yoke on an old-fashioned plow. Holloway was an unsung and largely forgotten man when he died. Only a short death notice appeared in local newspapers. The death notice lists his birthplace as Lanham, Kansas, - a town which isn't on the map. Holloway always lied about his age, so when he died most people thought he was in his

Holloway served 15 years on the Lincoln police force, enjoying the distinction of being the force's only mounted officer for a time. He patrolled downtown Lincoln on horseback, writing parking tickets, former Lincoln Police Chief Joe Carroll recalls. Carroll remembers when he and Holloway went to Des Moines to capture a man who had murdered a small boy in Lincoln. Holloway was appointed sheriff to replace E. C. Ward, who died in 1942. One of his first official duties was to deputize Karnopp, Ward's

During his last years as sheriff, Holloway groomed Karnopp to be his replacement, and encouraged Karnopp to run in 1950. Then, in an about-face, Holloway ran against Karnopp, but

The farm near Malcolm was Holloway's first love, Karnopp said. He raised cattle, and maintained two large ponds which were always stocked with fish.

Locals also recall that in the 1950s Holloway had a hired hand who might be described as an "early hippy." He had a long beard and long hair, and never bathed, Behring said. People called him "Tarzan."

'Tarzan' lived in a one-room shack on the back part of the farm, and seldom left the premises, Behring said. The shack is gone, and the O'Mearas are

Williams bound over in sex assault case

Star Staff Writer

Much of accused murderer Robert E. Williams' 41st birthday was spent in courtrooms Friday, and he didn't get anything in either of two hearings that could be considered a gift.

Williams was bound over to Lancaster County District Court Friday afternoon to stand trial on charges of sexually assaulting a 25-year-old Lincoln woman at gunpoint. County Court Judge Robert Camp set Williams' arraignment for Oct. 27, the same day he is scheduled to face two murder charges.

Earlier Friday, District Court Judge William Hastings ruled Williams was mentally competent to stand trial under Nebraska law.

At the preliminary hearing on the sexual assault and firearms charges, the alleged victim said Williams came to her north Lincoln apartment on the morning of Aug. 11 and stayed there until late afternoon.

The woman said Williams had a handgun and forced her to have sexual relations with him several times

In the afternoon, the witness said, Williams told her to come with him to get some cigarettes, but when they got to his car, he told her she could go.

Asst. Police Chief Roger LaPage also testified about certain statements Williams allegedly made to police after he was captured on Aug. 18. The context of those statements could prejudice Williams' right to a fair trial and are not being reported by The Star.

LaPage did admit on the stand, however, that the tape recording of the alleged statements do not contain any conversation that show Williams was read his "Miranda rights.

believe Williams had committed it. In the earlier hearing, two physiciatrists testified that Williams understood the charges he was facing and the possible penalties he could receive. He was also able to assist his attorneys in his defense, they said.

Under Nebraska law, those three elements must be present for an accused person to be mentally competent to stand trial

Dr. J. Witney Kelley, an Omaha psy-chiatrist, testified that Williams was "a very intelligent man and is extremely well organized."

"In many ways, he could possibly do a better job" than the average person in helping with his defense, Kelley said.

Hastings denied Hagel's request for a delay, saying that the only reason for the hearing was to determine if Williams was mentally competent to stand trial. Any contention that Williams was psychotic could be raised at his trial, Williams also faces charges of first-degree murder in the deaths of Patricia McGarry and Catherine Brooks, both 25, Aug. 11, and with first-degree sexual assault of Mrs. Brooks.

At a hearing a week ago, Dr. Harlan A. Papenfuss, a medical examiner, testified that both women had been shot to death in Ms. McGarry's duplex at 1400 N. 66th, and that Mrs. Brooks had had sexual intercourse within two hours of her death.

Some rural power rates to increase

Grand Island (UPI) -Customers of the Southern Nebraska Rural Electric Association will have to pay about $150,000 in increased electric rates because of a dispute between the Lincoln Electric System and the Nebraska Public Power District, an association spokesman said Friday.

"It's (the dispute) going to increase what would normally be our demand charge each month by about 21/4-21/2%," said Weston Webb of Grand Island, a spokesman for southern Nebraska, which serves customers in southcentral Nebraska.

"It doesn't sound like much. but we estimate at this time around $150,000," he said. "NPPD has made this preliminary estimate based on the cost of borrowing money.

Lincoln Electric, which is involved in a long-pending rate dispute with NPPD, has been withholding partial payment on NPPD wholesale power bills. The amount withheld is about $23 million.

NPPD says Lincoln Electric's action has put NPPD in a financial bind and says it must borrow money to pay operating costs, resulting in higher electric rates for all NPPD customers.

Southern Nebraska had an open letter to its customers published in Thursday's editions of the Grand Island Independent newspaper.

"We recognize when a disagreement of this nature occurs, nromally neither party is all right nor all wrong, however, when one public entity criticizes another public entity and is then threatened with a liable suit, it does create reasonable doubt as to who is right and who is wrong," the letter said.

LT&T meets workers' demands

An agreement reached early Friday after 22 hours of negotiations between Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. and its employes' union may have averted a threatened strike by telephone company workers

An informed source told The Star Friday that members of Local 7470 of the Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO, had voted by an "overwhelming majority" to strike if the telephone company failed to meet workers' demands.

The three-year-old contract, which becomes effective Sunday, provides increased wages and benefits for the some 1,500 employes throughout LT&T's service area.

LT&T Executive Vice President James Geist termed the new atreement a "good contract" and reasonable for both the company and its employes.

Terms of the contract call for wage increases during the first year of from $13.50 to $24 per week for those employes at the top of their wage progression schedules.

According to James C. Vanderslice, spokesman for LT&T, a small group of employes will receive $25.50 per week with a minimum increase for all covered employes of $5 per week.

from spreading.'

The contract also includes wage increases in the second and third years of about 3% plus cost-of-living allowances based on increases in the Consumer Price Index.

A dental insurance plan was added to the employe benefit program as well as two more selectable excused work days. In addition, some job classifications were upgraded and improvements made in the company's pension plan.

Nursing homes complaints aired

Grand Island (UPI) — The Unicameral's Public Health and Welfare Committee Friday was told of complaints about the care given to residents of a Neligh nursing

About 150 persons attended the hearing where Antelope County Supervisor Carl Schrader read several letters written to his board complaining about the nursing home. In one letter read by Schrader, the writer complained of the care given to a 94-yearold man who died June 30

'His hands and wrists were bruised many times, he received several lacerations, three of which were quite serious, the last one requiring eight stitches. He also said the man caring for him twisted his wrist. The girls and women were all gentle and kind, and he was very fond of them," according to the letter.

Schrader said, "My complaint is that I could not find out what happened. I asked the LPN, the nurse and the manager, and no one could or would tell me a thing.'

Schrader said the Antelope County Board passed a resolution this month asking the State Health Department and other health providers in the state to investigate the nursing home.

Nursing home conditions probed at hearing

Associated Press

A hearing on whether to revoke the state license of Valley View Care Center, Inc., Nebraska City, began Friday with testimony about unsanitary conditions at the nursing home.

Jim Graber of the Health Department testified about unsanitary food conditions. including flies in the kitchen area, dirty rooms and general unkept and dirty appearance at the nursing facility run by Albert and Arlene Inman.

"There are numerous deficiencies cited regarding food service sanitation," Graber said of his unannounced survey June 15.

"There was a large container of meat that was set out on a counter top for five hours," he said, adding that provided a room temperature opportunity for "rapid bacterial growth Graber also testified there was no nursing home administrator on the grounds during his day-long visit.

The Inman's own controlling interest of the home, but aren't licensed administrators. One of the allegations they face is that they represented that a William A. Hewett was their home's administrator when he was working elsewhere 40 hours a Health Department hearing officer Roger Murray said another allegation concerns the fact that the Inmans were found guilty of embezzlement in Richardson County District Court in 1976. However, Murray said he understood there might be an effort to block that from being entered as evidence in the hearing he is holding.

The Valley View officials were being represented at the hearings by Lincoln attorney Richard Wood, who asked that he be supplied a copy of the letter of complaint that led to the June 15 survey Graber and other department officials conducted.

Ammonia car back on tracks without spilling

Crete (UPI) — Burlington Northern crews Friday put an anhydrous ammonia tanker which derailed on the west edge of Crete back on the tracks and moved it to a siding about one mile west of town.

A Burlington spokesman in Crete said none of the ammonia in the tanker leaked when the car tipped over. The tanker was among eight cars which derailed early Friday. A spokesman said the derailment was still being investigated, but it may have been caused by a broken rail. One of the cars blocked Nebraska 33, but it was moved

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?" Psalms 2:1 and Acts 4:25

ADVERTISEMENT

Was it not Julius Caesar who wrote: "All Gaul is divided into three parts"? And was it not the late Will Rogers who said that American History was divided into three parts: 1, The passing of the Buffalo; 2, The passing of the Indians; and the modern period, The passing the Buck?

There is raging, rioting, rape, ruin, rebellion, crime, lawlessness, and anarchy just about all over the globe! When you think of it and the causes and ask why, why, do you ever think of your own responsibility in the matter, or do you almost involuntarily "pass the buck" to someone else: the Communists, The Rightists, Leftists, The President, The Senate, The House, The Supreme Court, Governors. Legislatures, or maybe the Ku Klux? But never once does the thought enter your mind that your own conduct and manner of life may sow the seeds that produce the harvest of such abominable conditions that are dangerous to your own home and loved ones, your means of livelihood, your government, your liberty and even life itself!

The Ku Klux was mentioned. A few years ago a certain man was walking through his home city's cemetery looking at the names of the buried folks - remember Sam Jones' comment: "The heart in your bosom is a 'muffled drum' beating a march for you to the cemetery!" - He noticed the graves of two men who had been very prominent in that community in business, or civil and official life. Both of these men were known by many to be unfaithful to their wives and marriage vows, and cohabiting with other women. Suddenly there was quite a change for the better observed in both cases. It was whispered about, sorter grape-vine fashion, that both men had been contacted by the Ku Klux and advised to cut out their devilment or they would be "taken on a ride" and served to a good thrashing, with maybe "tar and feathers for dessert." It is not known to this party how many lashes the laws of the Klux permitted, or if there was any limit at all, but it is to be feared they exceeded that of The Law of God that permitted "forty, save one"!

If any who read this happen to be guilty of corrupting another's home, or some woman or young girl, may it be suggested that that is the kind of medicine you need for what ails you, and it would be a picnic and light indeed in comparison with that which God's word reveals is in store for you unless you turn away from your evil and there is genuine repentance towards God and faith towards The Lord Jesus Christ." Oh, don't go to hell! But if you don't agree you may find comfort and encouragement from many a man and even D.D. men who tell you there is no hell, and in this atomic age "The Ancient of Days is out of date"!

Do we not set ourselves up as more righteous than The Holy God Himself when regardless of how mean and low down one may get to be, yet his precious carcass must not be touched with the stroke of strap or whip! I thank God that I had parents and a schoolteacher that did not consider my body so precious as all that. At times my "jaws were boxed." and at others there was applied - "behind" - the brush, the strap, and the switch. If I had been deprived of that healthy medicine that I needed I fear I would be a lot sorrier than I have turned out to be, as is. But I am not so sorry as to even now not strive to obey God's fifth Command: "Honor thy father and thy mother," to thank God for such parents and "to rise up and call them blessed." Hear The Word of God. The King of kings, and Lord of lords:

"Withhold not correction from the child: for if thou beatest him with the rod, he shall not die. Thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shalt deliver his soul from hell." Proverbs 23:13

That comes very near to just plainly saying: "Beat the hell out of him!" Doubtless the rod and strap and lash used in "The Fear of The Lord" would in a short time cut young and old folks delinquency to a minimum. But no, no, this generation knows better, and we will "Break The Bands and Cast Away The Cords" of The Almighty.

"Withhold not correction from the child ..." Proverbs 23:13.

Dairy distributor's penchant for wire container is udderly unique

Royal (AP) — Max Kipple "has a thing" for empty milk cases, says the district manager of a Nebraska dairy. Kipple fancies the wire containers so much that he has been avidly collecting them for the last eight years.

When dairy officials found out about Kipple and his collection last week, the independent dairy distributor had collected about 10,000 cases.

Kipple had stacked the cases on his property, stashed them inside 11 old milk trucks, put them in his shed and filled one empty brick building in

W. Westin of Sioux City, Iowa, heard about Kipple's penchant for milk cases. He drove to Royal and found 10,000 milk cases tucked away.

Valued by dairy officials at $4.25 apiece,
Kipple's milk bank was worth more than $40,000.

But he never intended to sell them, Kipple told

"He's glad it's over, but he has absolutely no reason that I can find," said Westin. "My guess is that after a load or two of not returning empties, it just got so that it was more than he could return. He However, Westin said no charges would be filed against the milk case collector. 'There's no point. We got all the cases back,"

The magnitude of the cache is probably expen-

Stolen cases are driving up the price of milk, Kochen said. It's a common problem; many people think they have the right to use them as tool boxes, for stools or for storage, he added.

The Nebraska Dairy Industry Association estimates milk bottling plants in the state could save $250,000 a year if the misuse of dairy cases was

But, back to Max. After Westin was tipped to the hoarded cases by an employe, he contacted the sheriff and county

More petitions

Alliance - The Alliance Concerned Citizens have voted to file new petitions with the Box Butte County District Court seeking a grand jury investigation of city affairs in Alliance.

The group failed in a similar attempt in July after a judge declared that the petitions failed to specify violations of the law and the statutes violated. After the court setback the group circulated petitions and, according to group spokesman J. O. Butcher, plans to file them next week.

Signatures on the petitions will be checked in the county clerk's office to determine the validity of the signatures. The first petitions had 393 such signatures.

Glinting cans keep gleam in his eye

Louie Wittmus is ready to go after any aluminum in his crusade, enough wind to run two of 'em.'

Wymore - The view from Louie Wittmus' nursing home window happens to be of a railroad track, for years a natural collector of beer cans and other clutter.

But Louie, fortunately for Wymore, is one man who can see the silvery side of things, even litter. This summer he revved up his wheelchair and launched a crusade which appears to have half this community chasing cans in his behalf.

Word got around that the gritty 82-year-old was selling the cans to buy a miniature windmill for the Good Samaritan Center, his home for 31/2 years. It took four months and close to 6,000 cans, but today that windmill whirls for real.

"At first I just wanted to clean up the town, but some of us got to talkin' about missing our old windmills so that's what I went after," said the lifetime bachelor farmer. "I can't stop now with so many good folks helping me.'

Among the steadist feeders of Louie's "smash pile" - he joyfully obliterates the cans with a 16-pound sledge - are Good Samaritan Center employes. Also enthusiastic sources are the local Legion Club and Louie's brother, Arnold. The younger Wittmus is Arbor State Park superintendent and volunteer hauler to an area recycling center, the Beatrice Beverage Co. The center's manager, Gene Simnitt, was so impressed fice bigwigs of Alcoa, the giant aluminum company. Recently, its promotional manager for reclamation, J.B. O'Donnell of Pittsburgh, dropped by to encourage the oldster. The visit pepped up both men, though the white-whiskered Louie is still chuckling about one memento of the get-together.

A six-pack O'Donnell bought, though tasty, "turned out to be a brand that comes in tin cans instead of aluminum. Not that the tins are wasted. Most of it goes to fellow Good Samaritan resident Mrs. Grace Ellis, 93, whose nifty crocheting converts the cans into fluffy coin banks. Pushing his beeper-equipped wheelchair before him, overall-clad Wittmus is a familiar sight in Whymore's business district, which borders the nursing home. Other litter, even carefully snipped bindweed, joins the cans which he piles on the

"About so much walking and my legs give out, so I sit down and roll awhile with the cans on my lap," he said, calling attention to a car license plate suspended from the chair's back. "At least this gets me outside and that beats going nuts in my Between his strolling and smashing ("I whacked 218 cans in

vin. "That means we'd better not leave anything around that's aluminum. He's even threatened to sell the TV antenna.

One thing the oldster won't be buying is another windmill. His whiskers twitched and his eyes glistened like a can in sunlight as he explained the reason:

Like a Kansas friend of mine used to say, he put up two windmills but had to take one of them down. There just wasn't

River inflow improves

Omaha (AP) — The September inflow to the Missouri River main stem reservoir system was the first near-average monthly inflow since last winter, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reported Friday.

The corps said inflow has been substantially below normal most of the year. Above the reservoir system, where conditions had been generally dry, rains contributed to inflows which were only 2 per cent below normal for the month. Below the reservoirs, much rain fell and resulted in substantial runoffs in the Missouri. During the week of Sept. 12, many tributaries in eastern Kansas and northwestern Missouri went over flood stage.

September precipitation and the normal rainfall for that month at major points along the Missouri system were:

Bismarck, N.D., 6.93 inches and 1.32 inches; Pierre, S.D., 2.74 and 1.19; Sioux City, Iowa, 4.90 and 2.84; and Omaha, Neb., 5.33 and 3.16, and Kansas City, 11.34 and 4.12.

Court aids concert search protest

the Nebraska Civil Liberties Union (NCLU) to stop random searches by police at local rock concerts got a boost Friday by an Iowa federal court decision.

The decision in Iowa said searching concert patrons indiscriminately was a violation of the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, which prohibits "unreasonable search and seizure.

'We'd already made a decision to do something," sais Barbara Gaither, NCLU executive director. "But I'm glad we have this Iowa decision to back us up.

What the NCLU is to do is still undecided Ms. Gaither said, action is planned before the

Oct. 28 Crosby, Stills and Nash concert at the UNL Sports and Entertainment Complex.

There are several alternatives, Ms. Gaither said. One includes asking for a temporary and permanent injunction against searches of patrons.

'But if we file, we'll file here," Ms. Gaither said. "Something ruled unconstitutional in another state doesn't necessarily stop them (authorities) from doing something here.

The original controversy began when University of Nebraska-Lincoln police held random searches of patrons of the recent Fleetwood Mac concert and confiscated items ranging from marijuana to a Frisbee.

ads won't affect fees

Advertising for lawyers probably will not set off a price war on legal fees, the head of American Bar Association's committee on ethics said Friday in Lincoln. Lewis H. Van Dusen of Philadelphia, in Lincoln for the Nebraska State Bar Association convention, said at a press conference that lawyers have a reputation of charging high Advertising, Van Dusen said, may help change that image. But lawyer ads probably won't have the impact on attracting clients that some people think,

"It's somewhat of a tempest in a teapot," Van Dusen contended. In most instances, when a person is in a situation where he needs legal advice, he asks a friend of neighbor to recommend a lawyer. Advertising probably won't change that situation, he said.

The one exception, he noted, could occur in people making wills. Many people don't think about drawing up a will, and die without leaving one.

Advertising might make more people think about that legal necessity, he said. Ads may also set off a price war for wills

"I think they may, and if they do, it's a good thing," Van

Some flak has occurred in legal circles over whether a lawyer can advertise a certain specialty. In Nebraska, the bar does not provide any way of determining whether a lawyer is a specialist in a certain type of law

"I don't see how you can prevent a man constitutionally from saying he limits his practice to labor law, if that's what he wants to say," Van Dusen

Lawyers will be permitted to advertise in magazines and newspapers and on radio, but not on television. Van Dusen said the stricture on television ly a result of the American Bar Association's lack of knowledge about that medium. Time ran out on the ethics committee that was drawing up the guidelines in August. "We didn't feel adequte to address the TV issue," Van

The bar association has been reluctant to permit advertising to any treater extent than they have to, he said.

"It is a mistake in my judgment for lawyers to resist the opportunity to give the public the information about what they do and don't do," said.

Delegates voted Wednesday to send two plans on lawyer advertising to the state Supreme Court. The high court would then decide which plan to allow lawyers to follow.

Association's House of

Plan A, which was endorsed by the delegates, sets up a long list of items that lawyers may include in an ad. Plan B is merely a proposal that says the ad may not contain anything unethical or mis-

The court is expected to act on the plans next month.

Acting makes 'Veronica's Room' a treat

By David Meisenholder

The Lincoln Community Playhouse opened Friday night its own bizarre Halloween party. The trickery was the not-so-hot melodramatic play, 'Veronica's Room," by Ira Levin, author of "Rosemary's Baby.

evening. Their Irish brogues were flawless. Their "other roles," which are part of the surprise, were contrasted so perfectly it took awhile to realize we had seen them on stage earlier in the hour and forty-five minute evening.

The final actor in the ensemble is Rod McCullough. He also plays dual roles. His first characterization of a young modern lawyer is more convincing than his double identity of a doctor in the year 1935.

Playhouse director John R. Wilson has artfully led these performers through a play that hints of madness. The four actors worked in ensemble at all times. In this Alfred Hitchcock-type play vocal variety, rate and pause are essential. This theatrical troupe used both voice and movement to a tee.

Ex-Lincolnite stabbed

A preliminary hearing is set for Monday in Boise, Idaho, in connection with the stabbing death of former Lincolnite John Mach, son of Joseph Mach of 1044 S. 16th St., was stabbed in a Boise bar Oct. 5 and died about an hour later.

Bernard Neil Miller, 26, of Boise was arraigned Oct. 6 on a charge of voluntary manslaughter. He was released on $10,000 bond, reportedly raised by members of his motorcycle gang,

About 40 persons were in the bar, Harry's Tavern, when the stabbing occurred, according to the Boise newspaper, the Idaho Statesman. Mach reportedly was standing in the corner while members of the motorcycle gang played pool.

Witnesses said they heard no argument before the stabbing. One witness said he saw Mach fall to the floor after being hit with a glass. He said he saw Mach start to get up but then was distracted and looked away. Mach is a graduate of Lincoln High School. Among survivors are sisters JoNella and JoAnn Mach and brothers Steve and Joseph, all of Lincoln.

Computer design saves time

The jolt electricity users feel around bill-paying time might be softened somewhat as a result of research at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to cut the capital costs of distribution systems.

A computer program which can design minimum weight transmission lines structures in a fraction of the time previously needed was developed by C. Wayne Martin, professor of engineering mechanics and Dwight T. Davy, associate professor of engineering mechanics.

Under a grant from Valmont Industries of Valley, the two, along with graduate students. Bau Lin and Gary Anderson, cut the time it took Valmont engineers to complete the structural designs for transmission lines crossing the Platte River near Louisville from three or four weeks to eight minutes.

Distributing electricity costs about as much as producing Martin said. Using the program, the computer has the ability to design structures for whatever condition the manufacturer

Rape Crisis Center appeals for funding

By Bob Reeves Star Staff Writer

After apparently losing out in a bid for funding through the Region II Crime Commission, the Rape Crisis Center has come to local governments with a last-ditch plea.

Gina Washburn, director of the rape counseling program administered by the Open Door Health Center, came to a meeting Friday of the City-County Common - made up of the City Council, the County Board and Mayor Helen Boosalis — to ask for help.

Ms. Washburn is the program's only paid staff member. All other workers are volunteers. A VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) grant has been paying her $200 per month, but will run out Oct. 22.

She appealed to the city and county to supply approximately $10,000 to keep the program going. The Lincoln-Lancaster United Way has pledged $2,771 toward a total request of $13,-

The common voted unanimously to turn the matter over to the joint City-County Budget Committee. The committee will meet next week to determine if local governments can come up with the money.

If the funds do not materialize, "after two weeks, I'll be gone," Ms. Washburn said. Ms. Washburn's services past year.

In other action, the common approved the appointment of Sister Phyllis Hunhoff, executive director of Madonna Care Center, to the Southeast Nebraska Health Systems Agency board.

She would replace former board member Don Nielsen who has resigned. Sister Phyllis' appointment must be approved separately by the City Council and the County Board

A first step was taken toward setting up a citizen task force to study city and county employes' pay plans. A com-mittee made up of County Commissioner Jan Gauger, City Councilman Joe Hampton and Mrs. Boosalis will look into the composition of the proposed study group.

The task force was suggested by Commissioner Bob Colin during a controversy concerning cost-of-living increases for country workers.

Councilman Bob Sikyta was elected chairman of the common, which meets to take informal, unofficial joint action on matters affecting both governments. He succeeds Commissioner Bob Colin, who chaired the sessions for the

GREGG JABLONSKI DOES COLUMN TO THE SECOND T

Today is NATIONAL NEWSPAPER CARRIER DAY! In honor of National Newspaper Carrier Day we salute Gregg Jablonski and the over 1600 hundred carriers of the Journal-Star.

Gregg Jablonski is just one of many young boys and girls who enjoy and profit from their newspaper routes while gaining valuable business experience.

Gregg is a fine young man. He has managed his Lincoln Star route for two years. He is a Senior Carrier Award winner for having a record of good route management in sales, service and collections.

Gregg, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Jablonski, is the last of seven brothers who have carried Journal-Star routes for seventeen continuous years. Having a route has benefited them all. They have found the route to be a teacher; it teaches responsibility, builds confidence and character. Financially, Gregg has learned how to handle money and the importance of saving money. He has learned to meet all types of people and how to please his customers.

Gregg is a student at St. Teresa school in the seventh grade. He is an above average student in his class. He and his family attend St. Teresa Church where Gregg is an Altar boy.

Active in all sports, Gregg is a defensive linebacker on the Roberts Midget class B team and co-captain of the team. He was pitcher and first baseman for the City Recreation and Little Chief baseball teams last summer. His Little Chief team was undefeated, playing fourteen games. Last year, he played basketball on the St. Teresa and Salvation Army Little Fry team.

We are proud of Gregg and every Journal-Star Newspaper Carrier who puts forth their best effort. We congratulate them all on this National Newspaper Carrier Day.

The Senior Carrier Award

Senior carrier awards are presented by the Journal-Star in April and October of each year. They are awarded to carriers who, over a period of twelve months, have shown an increase in subscriptions as well as a record of courteous, prompt service and good route management. The Journal-Star would like to thank the carriers who have won this award for their hard work at establishing themselves as successful carrier salespersons.

The news was taken as a signal that the Fed was likely to tighten credit further in its effort to combat inflation by restraining monetary growth.

But some buyers appeared anyway, apparently going on the theory that the market had taken the current negative news into account in advance with its recent slide. The surge in the money supply had been widely forecast.

Brokers said some traders who had sold short previously also seemed to be buying back in to cover their positions and nail down profits

NU-ISU grudge match likely low-scoring contest

Embarrassed, stunned, humiliated, teed off, deflated - the list apparently

As the countdown continued this week toward Saturday's Nebraska-Iowa State 1:30 p.m. grudge match at Memorial Stadium, the adjectives above were just a few ways Cornhusker players recalled last year's 37-28 loss to the Cyclones.

It's common knowledge that Nebraska has been priming for a rematch with Iowa State almost from the moment the gun signaled an end to last season's shocker — the first Iowa State win over the Huskers in 15 years.

"I only have one regret about this year's game," Nebraska linebacker James Wightman said. "I'm sorry Mike Fultz (former NU all-American) and the rest of last year's seniors won't be here to see what we are going to do."

Apparently, what is still sticking deep in the craw of Wightman and most of his teammates is the way they were treated at Ames, Iowa, on the afternoon of Nov.

"I remember when we beat them (Iowa State) 55-0 my sophomore year," Wightman said. "We still shook hands and talked after the game in typical Big was name calling, badmouthing. It was very humiliating.'

NU all-American center candidate Tom Davis recalled "the half-drunk, crasy fans. I guess I'll always remember the beer I had dumped on me after the game. But I guess you can't blame their fans, since it was the first time they had beaten us in 15 years.

Iowa State euphoria after the victory was understandable. It was only the 12th Cyclone win over the Huskers, who have prevailed 57 times. Two games ended in

"But Iowa State acted like they were an independent instead of a member of the Big Eight last year," Wightman said.
"They seemed to think — the way they were talking and acting - they didn't have to play us again this year.

If today's battle has a bit of a Hatfieldand-McCoy aura about it, the interstate clash is spiced by the fact both teams are undefeated (1-0) in league play and are 4-

A year ago, Coach Earle Bruce's Cyclones may have sneaked up on some folks when they finished 8-3. But as Bruce has said, "if you look at our films, you'll see we didn't have to sneak up on andyone. And we don't have to sneak up on anyone this year. We are for real."

Kickoff — 1:30 p.m., Memorial Stadium, Lincoln. Broadcasts—KLIN, KFOR, KFAB, WOW, KRNU-FM.

Nothing on the Cyclone outfit is more for real than the defensive line, which borders on the unreal. Boasting 13 years of starting experience between them, tackles Mike Stensrud (6-4, 265), and Tom Randall (6-6, 251) and middle guard Ron McFarland (6-1, 256), are being labeled the best in the Big Eight since Oklahoma's Selmon brothers.

Buoyed by rugged linebacker and co-captain Tom Boskey, the Iowa State defense has been called "probably the best we'll face this season" by Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne.

Although he has said that very thing a time or two already this year, the Husker coach has a point. Iowa State is leading the league in rushing defense, giving up an average of 114.2 rushing yards per contest.

A week ago, Kansas State was the leader in the same department. Nebraska promtply ripped the Wildcats for 359 yards, with I-back Isaiah Hipp personally ripping for 207 of them.

But Iowa State's defense gave a strong hint that it might be a trifle tougher than K-State's when the Cyclones shut out Missouri 7-0 last week.

Hipp, who has been bird-dogged this week in practice by Sports Illustrated's Doug Looney, will start in the Husker backfield with quarterback Randy Garcia, wingback Curtis Craig and fullback Monte Anthony.

"I think it's going to be a very interesting game," Anthony said. "The intensity is going to be like the Alabama game. There's going to be a lot of good hitting, and when we come out on the field, the people are going to know it.'

A throng of more than 76,000 is expected to sell out Memorial Stadium for the 92nd consecutive time. Because of the Cyclone defense and an unspectacular Iowa State offense, the crowd should witness a low-scoring affair.

"I don't think you'll see any five or six touchdowns," Osborne said. After losing starting quarterback Mike Tryon for the season in the opening game, Iowa State has been struggling offensively. Sophomore Terry Rubley has won the signal-calling job and will spend most of his time handing off to slick tailback Dexter Green.

A 5-9, 162-pound speedster, Green cracked the magic 1,000-yard barrier a year ago and rushed for 109 yards against Nebrask's defense will be without the services of linebacker and co-captain Jeff Carpenter. He has been confined to the hospital with an infected elbow.

'We all feel bad that Jeff isn't going to be there," said Nebraska's other cocaptain, Greg Jorgensen. "That will be one more reason for us to win.

"I'll guarantee you it won't be like last year. We were sort of dead, waiting for something to happen. This year, we are going to make things happen.'

Yanks take Series lead

The New York Yankees, controversy baseball's malcontents, received orders from Club President Gabe Paul to "shut up and play ball" and followed them to the letter Friday night by beating the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 behind the sevenhit pitching of Mike Torrez to take a two games to one edge in the World Series.

The Yankees now need only two more victories in the bestof-seven series to win their first world championship since 1962. The Yankees will send their ace, Ron Guidry, to the mound in game four Saturday while the Dodgers will try to get even with left-hander Doug

Because of recent squabbles among members of the team which made headlines Friday morning, Paul called a news conference early Friday to set the record straight on what he expected from his team. He made it clear that he wanted the Yankees to quit griping and get down to the basics of playing baseball. Heeding Paul's words, the Yankees came to play and ironically, the two key figures in the victory were two of the unhappiest Yankees, Reggie Jackson and Torrez.

Jackson had been a major cause of all the fuss when he second-guessed Manager Billy Martin for using pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter in the second game Wednesday night. Martin had publically blasted Jackson Thursday, but the two men met for an hour and a half before Friday's game and buried the hatchet.

Jackson, though, came to play Friday night. He singled home a run and scored another during a three-run first inning, then walked and scored the Yankees' final run in the fifth on Chris Chambliss' single.

"Paul says the players are going through a period of controversy," said Jackson. "I don't know about that. I'm trying to do a whole lot to try from becoming a towering inferno. I shouldn't be the most 55,992.

But it was Torrez who emerged as the true hero. "I think our ballclub is wellknit because no matter what you say about us, we come to play baseball," said Martin, whose remarks about Jackson caused a furor Thursday. "I've been saying all year this club has togetherness and we proved it tonight.' NEW YORK LOS ANGELES

Rockets blank Knights, 13-0

By Chuck Sinclair Prep Sports Writer

After Lincoln Northeast's 13-0 upset of Class A No. 1 rated Lincoln Southeast in a homecoming spoiler Friday night before 7,050 fans at Seacrest Field, one of the Rockets pleaded with coach Bob Els in an effort to get him to the shower.

Els gracefully declined the offer, mentioning there was only one way he'd like to get tossed into the shower - after a state championship.

That's a long way down the road for any football team, Els said, but the Rockets had a right to be proud of their effort in knocking Southeast from the top perch and the ranks of the

It was a must situation for Northeast after dropping its first game last week by a 3-0 count to rival Lincoln East. From the opening kickoff, it appeared as though Northeast still hadn't recovered from that disappointing loss to East in its own homecoming. Southeast senior John

Lexington ends Pius X's unbeaten string

By Tom Vint Staff sports writer

Lexington coach Dennis Thorell had it figured. If his No. 9rated Minutemen could just score first and hold on, they could beat second-rated Pius X in Lincoln. It didn't exactly turn out that way. Pius scored first but then Thorell didn't count on all the help which allowed his club to come up with a 14-8 upset of the previously unbeaten Thunderbolts to spoil homecoming for the Pius fans.

Fumble was the name of the game for Pius. The 'Bolts coughed the ball up four times, losing three and two of those led to Lexington touchdowns.

Pius did get on the board first, however. On the second offensive series, the explosive 'Bolts popped a couple of long gainers with John Grosserode doing the toting. Starting at its own 23, Pius scratched out 10 yards before quarterback Pat Wiese hit Grosserode on a crossing pattern for a 39-yard gain to the Lexington 28

After a rushing play to gain three, Grosserode was called upon again. This time the 180-pound senior wingback went 25 yards on an inside reverse for the game's first points. The extra point try was blocked but Pius had scored first, something which worried Lexington's Thorell.

'We thought if they scored first they'd get going and blow us out of there," said Thorell. "We wanted to score first and hold onto the ball as long as we could. We felt we could beat them that way.

Thorell shouldn't have worried so much. His Minuteman defense rose to the occasion and snuffed Pius from that point

"Defense definitely won it for us," said Thorell. "They had to play the whole last quarter and still kept them from scoring. It was a great defensive effort.'

Pius gave the six point lead back to Lexington in the second quarter when Wiese fumbled the ball away on the Pius 12. Ryne Norton fell on it for Lexington and game hero Tim Holbrook took the ball in on the very next play. The extra point attempt failed when the center snap was high and the run attempt was Lexington's first half ball control paid dividends, however. Pius managed only three first downs and 70 yards rushing. Mike Morin, the 'Bolts rushing ace who came into the game with three consecutive 200-yard performances, was held to 50 first half yards and ended the game with 72.

Meanwhile, Holbrook and Jim Murphy were picking up three and four yards at a crack against the Thunderbolt defense. Lexington ate up the clock in rushing for 140 yards on 32 carries the first half. The final statistics weren't any different. Pius had 109 yards rushing on 30 carries to 191 yards on 59 carries for Lex.

The game's winning touchdown again came via a Pius fumble. This time Morin mishandled a handoff at the Pius 16 and Holbrook fell on it at the 13. Holbrook then carried 11 yards to the one where it took three more plays for Holbrook to finally carry the ball the last yard with 4:57 to play in the third period.

'We tried to play catch up and our passing game didn't work too well," said coach Aldrich of his 'Bolts. "We threw everything at them and we couldn't catch up. They were stopping our run well so we thought we had to throw more.

"I think they were a little bit tougher than we were tonight. And we fumbled too many times. You can't give them that many opportunities. Holbrook, who scored both Lexington TDs, rushed for 98 yards on 26 carries and led much of the Minuteman defensive effort in the victory. Lexington is now 5-2 on the season, having won the last five in a row. Pius slipped to 5-1 on the year.

Held in check by a tough Lincoln High defense for the first three quarters, Columbus finally got on the scoreboard twice in the fourth quarter on a 5-yard run by John Justice and a three-yard run by John Ralph McWilliams got the game's final score for Lincoln The Links, who now have a three-game winning streak, host North Platte next Saturday night before closing with Columbus, now 1-5-1, travels

Nebraska cornerback Rod Lewis (19) picks off one of two interceptions by the Husker frosh Friday.

Husker JVs rally for victory over Iowa State JVs, 38-20

Nebraska's freshmen football team fought back from an early 13-0 deficit to claim a 38-20 victory over the Iowa State JVs at memorial Stadium Friday after-

"It wasn't a very artistic win," NU frosh coach Guy Ingles noted after his club ran its record to 3-0 for the season. "But I was proud the way our kids held their poise after falling behind and played well in the second quarter when they had to." Each team lost three fumbles and there were three passes intercepted during the

"It was a game of breaks," Ingles added. "In the long run, we took more advantage of the breaks we got.'

That didn't appear to be the case at the outset. Iowa State took the opening kickoff and marched within field goal range on 13 running plays before the drive bogged down. Steve Johnson booted a 28-yarder to give the Cyclones a 3-0 lead.

Nebraska's Anthony Steels fumbled the ensuing kickoff and four plays later ISU quarterback Vinny Cerrato threw a 13vard touchdown pass to James Solus for a 10-0 lead.

who saw action for the Cyclone JVs who will be in uniform this afternoon for the Iowa State varsity. On the third play after the next kickoff, a pass from Nebraska's Mark Mauer slid off the fingertips of Greg Rabas and ISU's Dan Dummermuth intercepted. Despite two costly penalties, Johnson kicked another field goal to give the Cyclone a 13-

After 10 minutes of action, Nebraska had run a grand total of three offensive plays to 22 for Iowa State

The Huskers finally got the offense untracked to score 17 second-quarter points to grab a lead they never lost.

Middle guard Curt Hineline, who had an outstanding day on defense, recovered a fumble which led to NU's first score on a 13-yard pass from Mauer to Scott Woodard.

Rex Eberspacher kicked a 40-yard field goal to pull the frosh within five, then Woodard tallied his second TD on an end around from 15 yards out for the 17-13 halftime lead.

Mauer sneaked one yard for a third quarter TD and Nebraska got a cheap the count to 31-13.

ISU's Dan Robinette tried to field a punt on his own three. A hit by NU's Anthony Branch popped the ball loose. Linebacker Pat Buhrman pounced on the ball in the end zone for the score.

Iowa State closed the gap to 31-20 on a Solus 20-yard touchdown run before NU's Steels produced the final count on a 53-yard TD dash. A crowd of 4,221 saw walkons tally 30 of Nebraska's 38 points. Woodard, from Papillion, at 5-9 and 160 pounds is a mirror image of frosh coach Ingles. Steels, who paced the winners with 129 yards on 13 carries, walked on from Greece, where his father was in the service. "Woodard and Steels came up with some big plays when we needed them,' Ingles said. "We have a lot of good walkons on this team, which has a chance to be very comparable to our better freshman teams of the past. 'The thing I liked,' Ingles added, "is that we got the weekend off to a good start. I hope that's a good omen for the varsity Saturday afternoon.

The Boston Celtics have cut former Nebraska guard Jerry Fort, leaving their roster at 12, one over the regular season limit. Fort originally drafted in 1976. He suffered a broken leg that summer and spent the season with Hartford of the Eastern League

Other basketball

Detroit Pistons forward Marvin Barnes, who said he had a lot of time "to check myself out," rejoined his teammates in Buffalo Friday after serving five months of a one year prison sentence for a probation violation.

The Indiana Pacers have signed guard Willie Smith of Missouri, cut Wednesday by the Philadelphia 76ers.

Football

The Pittsburgh Steelers have listed quarterback Terry Bradshaw as doubtful for Monday night's game against the Cincinnati Bengals, but Bradshaw disagrees, saying, "I didn't come here to sit around.

David Paterno, 11, son of Penn State football coach Joe Paterno, suffered a skull fracture Friday in a fall from a trampoline.

Baseball

Thurman Munson, catcher and captain of the New York Yankees, said Friday he is "adament about going home" and has asked to be traded to the Cleveland Indians.

Veteran NBC sportscaster Joe Garagiola says he thinks the ABC broadcast crew working this year's World Series is "butchering" the job.

Northeast

Southeast turned the ball over a total of five times, three on fumbles and two on interceptions, while Northeast lost just one first quarter interception. "When that happens, and you can't get anything done on offense," Solich added. 'Against a good football team. it's only a matter of time.

"They were tough," Solich said. "They had it tonight and we didn't. They were certainly ready both mentally and physically. I've never seen Northeast backs run that hard. Sure, they're big and strong, but they've never gone after it like they did tonight."

Through three quarters, it looked like a field goal might decide the game as it did for East against Northeast last week

The only serious threat besides Southeast's opening drive was when Northeast quarterback Randee Johnson tossed a pass that appeared deflected and into the hands of taken to the hospital after the

Jeff Svoboda in the endzone game with a jammed neck, just before the half.

The official ruled it incomplete.

"Jeff said he caught it and I believe him," Johnson said. "The official was out of position to see it, but it didn't matter. We just forgot about it. We figured we would need more than that anyway.' It was Johnson who finally got Northeast on the board with 8:41 remaining in the game on an option play that hadn't been real successful up to that point Rolling to his right, Johnson faked a pitch to Steve Damkroger and Fisher, who came up from his safety position to meet Johnson, went path to the endzone. On the next series, Fisher then suffered his first interception of the night when he overshot his receiver into the hands of Dave Domier. Domier, who was injured and

Maness leads Knights to title

Hastings - A junior who and a lot of battling for didn't even know he'd play until Wednesday led Lincoln Southeast to its second state boys golf championship in less than five months here Friday at Lochland Country Club.

Mark Maness, who did not compete in the Knights 17stroke district loss to Lincoln East Monday, surprised everyone including himself by finishing second to East's Chris Swett for medalist honors.

"I sort of came out of the blue - a real darkhorse I guess you could say," Maness said. 'It's been up and down, mostly down, for me all year. I didn't make the team for three or four meets."

That included district when teammate Drew Stange beat Maness in a playoff for the number four position. "I was a little uptight that I wouldn't even get a chance to qualify for state since district was so late because of the bad weather," Maness said. He got his chance though and came through with a 40

Tuesday and 38 Wednesday to emerge the Knight's No. 4 man. It's ironic the way Maness has scrambled to make Southeast's all-underclassmen lineup since he was the Knight's No. 3 man all last

Jones and Jim Druliner. "I played well all last year. but I just haven't been able to get it together this year," Maness said. "Bobby Puelz, Clay Anderson and myself were supposed to carry the load this fall. But just like last spring, there's a lot of talent position." "Seven people have really been battling for four or five spots all year," Maness said. 'I think it's hurt us because it drew us apart to the point where we were rooting against each other." But it was apparent Southeast pulled together for the repeat championship performance. Maness shot a 75. Anderson finished ninth with a 78. Puelz had an 82 and Bill Spangler completed the scoring with an 83. Spangler is a sophomore and the other three juniors.

Maness would have won individual honors if he had finished Friday's round as well as he started.

"I birdied four and five and was still even going into No. 17," he noted. "But I choked it away. I triple-bogied 18 and that really cost me.

"This means a lot to be able to repeat in the same year," Maness said. "Even though East beat us at districts, we still felt we were the odds-on favorite since they had had problems getting four steady players."

Lincoln Northeast ran like there was no tomorrow and Lincoln Pius X ran its typically steady self Friday afternoon as both teams annexed district cross country championships at Pioneers Park.

The Rockets placed all five runners among the top 10 to rip city champion Lincoln Southeast by 21 points and Metro Conference champion Creighton Prep by 41 in the A-1

The Thunderbolts fashioned 1, 2, 5 and 14-place finishes en route to a 22-point triumph over Fairbury in B-1 competition. Auburn also qualified for next Friday's state cross country meet at Kearney with a third place finish.

As satisfied as he was with his team's remarkable effort, Northeast coach Bill Rogge refused to be caught up in the euphoria of his runners.

The ball game is in Kearney, not here," he said. "I remember two years ago when Bellevue won the Metro, Prep the district and Burke the state. This (Prep's third place finish) happens all the time. Nothing counts till next week."

Prep had beaten twice defending state champion Burke by 28 points for the Metro title last Friday. "I was high then. I'm low now. We were fortunate to qualify," observed Father Ted Kalamaja, Prep's head coach.

Northeast's Tom Bowmaster ran a career best 12:56 to beat Prep's Mark Franco by eight seconds over the 2.5-mile Pioneer layout.

"I was shooting for under 13 today, but I didn't think I'd get it because I've been stuffed up all day with a little cold." Bowmaster said. "I'm still hur-

The 5-10, 134-pound senior, who ranks No. 1 in his class scholastically, realizes next week is a bigger challenge on a much hillier Kearney Country Club layout.

"But if we run like we did today, we can be right in the thick of it," Bosmaster said, pointing out the Rockets accomplished the district championship without No. 3 runner Alan Young, who is sidelined for the rest of the season with a calf injury.

Dwight Groth and Jerry Spethman finished 1-2 in 13:21 and 13:29 to lead Pius X to its Beaver Crossing (UPI) - A rural Beaver Crossing couple has been arrested in connection with the confiscation of an estimated $60,000 worth of marijuana, State Patrol Lt. Bob Clinkenbeard said Friday.

The couple, in their mid 20s, apparently had been renting a farm home near the southeast Nebraska town for several months, he said. Clinkenbeard said it is believed the marijuana or hashish might have been shipped out of state, possibly to Texas.

Clinkenbeard is in charge of the patrol's eastern division drug enforcement operations. He said about 150 pounds of marijuana were seized in the Dorchester - A veteran leader in the preservation of area history will be honored here Sunday as a highlight of the town's first fall festival.

Tribute will be paid Mrs. Rosa Dusanek, especially for her work with the Saline County Historical Society Museum. A past-president of the organization, she has looked after the museum since its 1964

'We figure Rosa devotes some "2.000 hours annually to the operation so she greatly deserves this area's thanks, said Dick Sehnert, Chamber of Commerce president. Besides working five days a week keeping the place in order, she walks out every Sunday afternoon to open it to the public.

Both the Saline Historical Society and Nebraska State Historical Society will join the chamber in the 2:30 p.m. recognition. Appropriately, the concluding Sunday activities of the three-day festival will be at the museum. Historical skits, heritage arts and crafts displays, and afternoon square dancing are included. The festival begins Friday with an open house at the school and homecoming football game as main ac-

Saturday's all-day scheduled features games and a 5:30 p.m. harvest parade, followed by a 9 p.m. dance. Mrs. Carole Conner is general chairman.

Exon appoints group members

United Press International Gov. J. James Exon announced the appointment of Dr. Barry M. Buxton of Lincoln to serve on the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities. Exon also announced the appointment of Zella Mae Hoffman of Kearney to the commission on drugs. She succeeds Bernard Stutheit who recently resigned. Her term is to expire Feb. 1, 1980.

The governor also reappointed two members to the Equal Opportunity Commission. Serving additional three year terms are Ruth Short of Omaha and Mrs. Dorothy Holstein of Winnebago.

By Tom Vint Outdoor Editor Burwell's Shirley Meckel Friday became the first woman ever to sit in on-a Nebraska Game and Park Commission board meeting as fishing, boating and snowmobiling regulations and changes. Mrs. Meckel was appointed by Gov. J. J. Exon to replace Loup City's Ken Zimmerman to the five-year post of commissioner. Friday's regular commissioners took on sport

October meeting marked her first official appearance on the seven-member board. Regulation changes passed included boating regulations calling for Arthur Bay on Lake McConaughy to be added to that lake's five mph no-wake boating limits. Increased usage of the area is creating a safety hazard due to speed boating, according to Dale

Bree, assistnat director in charge of parks. Operation of snowmobiles will be permitted on specified frozen lakes. The commission had worried about a liability problem but it was revealed as essentially nonexistent in a legal opinion. Fishing changes provided for jug fishing on Lewis and Clark Lake in matching a South Dakota regulation of similar nature. The commissioners also noted paddlefish snagging below Gavins Point Dam will be changed to prohibit continued snagging after the twofish limit has been reached. Bass size limits were removed from western Nebraska's Walgreen Lake and from three of the ponds on Fort Robinson State Park. The limit was removed due to abundance of undersized fish in the lakes and ponds. Finally in fishing regulation changes, the addition of Upper Dugout Creek, Indian Creek, Silvernail Drain and Cedar Creek was made to streams where dip nets are prohibited to protect trout. The commissioners then okayed the acquisition of 154 acres of land two miles south of Genoa, 120 acres 11/2 miles south of Cowels and permission to bid on another 191-acre tract two miles west of South Bend for wildlife purposes. A $59,700 gift was made by the Omaha World-Herald Foundation to construct an audio-visual auditorium for the Ak-Sar-Ben aquarium complex on the Schramm Tract near Gretna. The donation will help make the facility one of the best visitor centers in the country, according to Commission director Gene Mahoney. Also Friday morning, the commissioners set the November meeting for public hearings dealing with commercial fishing regulations on the Missouri River and in setting the recommendations for implementation of the park user fee as provided by LB81 last

The Citizens to Preserve Wildnerness Park won the latest battle over the West Bypass Friday without having to fire a shot.

The group was going to file suit to stop the proposed $65 million project, but decided to hold off after a "sudden and radical position of the Federal Highway Asministration," according to Dr. Paul Stoesz, group chairman.

That change, said Ray Hogrefe of the Department of Transportation, was a decision not to defend the impending suit. Instead, the federal agency wants to hold more hearings on possible alternatives to the route.

Asked at a press conference about an apparent change of heart in backing the bypass route, Hogrefe said, "We could lose the suit.

The department is involved in several similar sawsuits across the country, and the legal action is causing bad public relations as well as delaying the projects, Hogrefe

Regardless of whether the government wins or loses the suit, it would lose credibility with the public, Hogrefe said.

The Wilderness Park group will be asked to provide input on future studies of possible bypass routes. The group's main objection was that the bypass would go through the park's day camp area.

The new route may go through a section of Wilderness Park, Hogrefe said, but will not go through the day camp area. The bypass would link

Interstate 80 with U.S. 77 and Hwy. 2 with a four-lane cor-

One alternative that was studied previusly along with the proposed route would put the bypass through the Yankee Hill neighborhood. That alternative would be among future considerations, but Yankee Hill residents would also be asked to join in discussions,

Public hearings on possible routes would also be held, he

Just how long the new studies will delay the final construction of th road, Hogrefe said he didn't know. The bypass was scheduled for completion in 1985.

"It's back to the drawing board for the department of roads," Hogrefe said.

Regents appoint 3 to top NU positions

By Nancy Hicks

Two top administrative posts at the University of Nebraska Medical Center and one on the Omaha campus were filled Friday by University of Nebraska Regents.

Dr. James V. Griesen, currently associate professor and director of the Office of Educational Resources and Research at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, was approved as vice-chancellor of the Medical Center.

Griesen, 36, received his bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degrees from Ohio State University, Columbus. During the past two years he has devoted the major portion of his time to institutional development, particularly development of a construction grant proposal for a new medical campus library.

Dr. Griesen, expected to join the staff Jan. 1, will be in charge of the Medical Center's academic resources, including the Library of Medicine, Continuing Education and Biomedical Communications. He also will be the academic officer for the center.

Regents back study on declining literacy

The University of Nebraska will take the lead in ending declining literacy amoung the state's students if the Board of Regents follows recommendations of NU President Ronald Roskens.

Roskens proposed Friday that the university study the issue of minimum entrance qualifications and work with agencies and schools across the state to "reverse the trend toward lower standards of language proficiency.

The proposal specifically includes a three-to five-year study of possible minimum entrance requirements for university work and formation of a state-wide task force to look into the problems of English deficiency and propose

At the same time the university must also make certain that all of its graduates have sound skills in the fundamentals of reading and writing and that the teaching graduates are especially prepared to deal with the problem of language deficiency, Roskens said. The proposal, in part, was an answer to criticism by Regent Chairman Robert G. Simmons of Scottsbluff, concerning university-level, remedial classes. workshops for students unable to write at the collegiate level.

The proposal gained support from many regents who said it 'was a step in the right direction," but the idea was sent to a subcommittee for study and recommendation.

A committee looking at the five-state regional school concept has indicated that Lincoln is the best site for such a school if it is built, said Senator Martin Kahle, of Kearney, a member of the Old West Regional Commission committee.

the regional school concept and alternatives will go to the Old West Commission Nov. 21, Kahle said.

Current estimates for putting the whole program together are $20 to $30 million, Kahle, said, with construction costs alone approaching $20

One of the five states, South Dakota, "does not seem to have much interest," Kahle said. The five states also include North Dakota, Wyoming

Currently Nebraska is paying more than $560,000 to send 85 students to veterinary schools in Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri and Senator Frank Lewis of Bellvue urged the regents to get an independent needs assessment study before making decisions on the veterinary school.

$179,000 to build road to brand new building

Brohman, Mich. (AP) - Now that the federal government has spent $100,000 for a community building in an inaccessible part of Newaygo County, it is putting up $179,000 for a road to

James Ware Sr., the Merrill Township supervisor, reported the latest money comes from the Economic Development Ad-

Ware said he hopes it will be enough to pave the 2.5-mile dirt trail between Brohman and the Woodland Park community center, which is vacant because of its inaccessibility.

Irene Jenkins, an official of the Housing and Urban Development office in Detroit, said her agency provided money for the building last year but did not have $291,000 the township wanted for a road to reach it.

The building is in a forest about 10 miles north of White Cloud, the county seat.

Exon asks for strike to end

Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon, chairman of a National Governors Conference subcommittee on agriculture, asked President Carter Friday to use "any and all means" to bring an end to the longshoremen's strike.

The present longshoremen's strike at the gulf ports is currently further penalizing farmers already facing depressed prices and short storage facilities," Exon told Carter in a

"The agricultural picture remains bleak and the (proposed) Dec. 14 strike of farmers and ranchers will certainly bring to the forefront nationally the current economic plight of the nation's food producers," Exon said. Exon said the use of "organized pressures such as strikes has not been a typically acceptable instrument by those of us concerned about agriculture. But these are not typical times, and the economic crunch has not been as serious at any time since the 1930s.

Your successful and positive intervention on the gulf port tieups of overseas grains shipments would be most helpful.'

Starch conversion plan backed

The Democratic National Committee unanimously endorsed a resolution urging the Carter administration to launch a federal starch conversion program.

The resolution was sponsored by Democratic National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede of Guide Rock. Meanwhile, the national committee's Farmers Caucus met with Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to attempt to secure his assistance to persuade the administration to begin such a program. The conversion program would convert underutilized grains into alcohol to reduce the nation's dependence on imported oil,

Supplemental farm bill sought

Friday called upon Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to propose a supplemental farm bill to "immediately establish parity at 100% for corn and wheat."

O'Donnell said "all farmers expected something better
